Abstract:

Since its inception in 1973, Asian Pacific Culture Week (APCW) has provided the UC Davis campus with cultural programs designed to both educate and celebrate. APCW became a University sponsored program in 1979 and grew into an annual event including students, faculty, staff, and members of the Davis community. Speakers from diverse corners of the Asian Pacific Islander community fill the week with presentations and performances by musicians, comedians, actors, authors, artists, and civil rights activists who visit the campus to share their experiences.
