Abstract and Collection Summary:

Judy Chu was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in July 2009. She represents Pasadena, Claremont, the San Gabriel foothills, and the west San Gabriel Valley.

Judy Chu was the first Chinese American woman elected to congress and was elected to the House of Representatives in 2009. Chu's career in politics began "when officials in Monterey Park, California, proposed making the San Gabriel Valley suburb an English-only community in the 1980s. Chu felt compelled to get involved. The resolution, the Democrat told The 19th, revealed that the city council did not represent the town's substantial immigrant population. When it failed, Chu knew what her next step would be: running for city office. In 1988, she won a seat on the Monterey Park City Council, and the next year she became mayor, a role she held until 1994 after serving three terms. In the following years, Chu set her sights on state leadership, winning a seat on the California Assembly in 2001 and the State Board of Equalization, which oversees taxes, in 2006. Just three years later, in 2009, she shattered a glass ceiling when she won California's 32nd Congressional District race. Having represented heavily Asian-American districts, Chu emerged as a leading voice for the Stop AAPI Hate campaign following a slew of hate crimes in the wake of news reports that the COVID-19 virus first developed in China. In January, when 11 mostly Asian-American seniors were killed and nine injured in a mass shooting at a ballroom dance studio in Monterey Park, Chu spoke out for the community she had led as mayor and has resided in for more than 30 years. During her tenure in Congress, she has championed a wide range of causes, including women's rights, reproductive rights, immigration reform, small business ownership and health equity. A two-decade psychology instructor for the Los Angeles Community College District and former school board member, Chu has supported educators as well." Biography courtesy of The 19th.

This collection of loose papers and files were donated by Judy Chu, collected by her previous interns (Bill Wong and Annie Lam) who were part of the Asian American Studies department (UC Davis). Chu's collection represents her career, activism, causes (including women's rights, reproductive healthcare, education, stop AAPI hate, BLM, and more) and programs she supported in the form of notes, letters, and papers during her time as a California assembly member from 2002-2006.
